Siblings of Jesus Series
By Fr Martin Nchedo Umeatuegbu
[56] What Does the Recession after Mass Signify? Connecting the Liturgy to our Daily Life (b)

One might be wondering why the last part of the Mass known as "Recession" should be discussed immediately after the first, "Procession," instead of discussing it last. The choice is deliberate because understanding it plays an important role in understanding the other parts of the Mass. Recession like procession, is also a movement, but that which takes a different direction. In the procession where the priest, deacon, and altar servers move to the sanctuary, which, as said in the previous series, signifies our earthly pilgrimage towards God, recession happens after the Mass, where the aforementioned ministers move from the sanctuary back to the sacristy.

This movement signifies God's action of sending us back into the world as missionaries. It is a response to an announcement the priest or deacon makes in the name of the Lord: "Ite Missa est" (The Mass is ended). The word Mass, "Missa" in Latin, forms the etymology of Mission. And so, it is from this part of the Liturgy that the Mass derives its name. So, in sending us, we carry God to others while still retaining the same God whom we have received and encountered in the one Sacrifice of Calvary which is made available at all times. How to look at it is to recall the Lord's saving event on the Cross and the tomb. In Calvary, after the Lord was crucified and redeemed the world by offering Himself to the Eternal Father, all who witnessed His Passion and Death did not remain on the mountain, but everyone dispersed and went down the mountain (see for example John 19). Similarly, after the women encountered the risen Lord when they went to the tomb and worshipped Him, He sent them away asking them to tell His disciples whom He referred to as "adelphoi" (brothers) that He is risen and that they should proceed to Galilee where they will see Him (see Matt 28:8-10). This Greek word gives birth to "Philadelphia" (love of brethren) - what we must show to others.

This means that the Mass is a celebration of our constant encounter with the wounded Lord, the tortured Lord, the crucified Lord, the risen Lord, the ascended Lord. So, when He sends us away, He is saying that recession is the fruit of procession. For many people who left Calvary went down to forgive others after He has asked His Father to forgive them for, they know not what they do (see Luke 23:34). If in the Mass we ask: "Lord have Mercy", the same Lord sends us away to forgive those who offended us. If in the Mass we profess in the Creed: "I believe in God the Father Almighty…," then the same Eternal Father sends us away to approach life difficulties in confidence believing that He will take care of us, since we are products of accident, but of Divine Providence. If in the Mass during the Eucharistic Prayer, the priest beseeches the same Father to send the Holy Spirit upon the bread and wine to change them into the Body and Blood of Christ, the same Lord sends us away to allow ourselves to be transformed totally. We process to Mass wounded; we recess from it healed. We process to it in sinfulness; we recess from it to practice virtues to conquer our sinfulness through holiness. We go to Mass as sinners; we leave it as saints. We go there worried; we leave with peace. We attend the Mass broken; we leave with joy. We process to the Mass with anger; we leave with meekness. We go there with our pride; we leave with humility. All this and more constitute the fruits it bears while this fruit is complete when we share them with others, so that when they encounter us, they embrace the Lord.

No wonder a woman who returned to the Catholic Faith after a long time of relapsing, shortly before she died after her receiving her last Communion, exclaimed: "One more Holy Communion, there comes eternity!" It is for this reason that in response to St Gertrude who was asking Jesus how best to thank Him for the favors granted her, received this reply from Him: "Attend one Mass."

St. Anne Pro-Life Committee

WE NEED YOU — JOIN US NOW

Whatever your gifts or schedule, we'll find your fit.

Our Pro-Life Committee is at work through two campaigns: Serving the Hungry and Standing Against Abortion Expansion. We need more hands. Please prayerfully join us.

Serving the Hungry

Once a month, St. Anne feeds the poor and homeless at Our Lady of Guadalupe. Defending life means defending it at every stage, from the unborn child to the neighbor struggling to feed their family. One hour. One prayer. One meal served.

Standing Against Abortion Expansion

A mega abortion facility is under construction in Las Cruces, and a second is planned for Las Vegas, NM, just 60 miles from our parish. Our silence is not an option.
