Give me an army saying the rosary, and I shall conquer the world.

POPE BLESSED PIUS IX

October 7 is the Feast of Our Lady of the Rosary. It was initially instituted as "Our Lady of Victory" by Pope Pius V, and known by this alternate title for centuries. This was because the Battle of Lepanto took place on October 7, 1571. In the worrisome days prior to the battle, the world, which all too often fails to see beyond the material world, had much reason to believe that the nations of Christendom would soon be falling under the banner of Islam. The naval fleet of 278 Ottoman ships rowing westward toward the Italian Peninsula appeared as formidable as a Goliath. The prospects of the Holy League's defense, with its much smaller fleet, looked rather dim. Pope Pius V, believing that a miracle was necessary, urged the desperate peoples of Europe to pray the rosary, and even led a rosary procession in Rome himself. The battle came. The Holy League annihilated the invading fleet. Roughly 12,000 Christians were freed from captivity. The victory was so resounding, and the naval prowess of the Ottoman Empire so crippled, that the Turks would never again threaten to overrun Christendom by sea. Pius V credited the Mother of God's prayers for this victory, so that we have this feast day today.

Never will anyone who says his Rosary every day become a formal heretic or be led astray by the devil.
